The ASCL National Professional Qualification for Executive Leadership (NPQEL) is your opportunity to achieve a nationally recognised executive leadership qualification, working with colleagues and leading educationalists from across the country, and utilising local expertise and knowledge which fits your regional context.

Specifically designed for those currently leading more than one school or college, or those interested in taking on such a role, either as an executive headteacher or as chief executive of a trust or federation in any phase of education, our executive leadership programme offers you an exceptional opportunity to prepare for the challenges of running a group of schools/colleges, enhance your leadership skills, hone your practice and achieve formal recognition.

How does the programme work?

Choosing ASCL for your NPQEL provides you with quality assured leadership delivery, coupled with local expertise and knowledge to ensure that learning fits your regional context.

This first-rate executive leadership programme has been developed by ASCL working with four well-established and highly regarded teaching school alliances.

Through a blended delivery model, the programme will cover key topics on a modular basis over an 18 month period, culminating in the two assessments which lead to the qualification.

For the cohort starting in October 2020, the current Covid-19 situation means we will be transferring our programme online, at least for the 2020 autumn term. However, this will be kept under constant review as the Covid-19 situation develops.

How will the programme be delivered?

The programme consists of a combination of:

- webinars
- online tutorial sessions
- online learning materials
- personalised executive coaching or mentoring sessions
- advice and guidance on the selection of assessment projects
- 360° professional reviews at the start and end of the programme

The programme is delivered by serving, experienced Executive Heads/CEOs and the ASCL Specialist team, and is supported by research evidence from the Centre for the Use of Research and Evidence in Education (CUREE).

NPQ accredited by

Department for Education

What topics will be covered?

The programme is delivered via online learning materials, webinars and tutorial sessions by a combination of experienced executive leaders and experts on specific topics, and covers all the curriculum content specified for NPQEL.

Modules

There are six areas of curriculum content:

- Strategy and Improvement
- Teaching and Curriculum Excellence
- Leading with Impact
- Working in partnership
- Managing Resources and Risks
- Increasing Capability

Cost

Cohort 4 starts on 6 October with a compulsory introductory webinar.
